

Decision Reserved In Goldberg Case

Justice Foster heard the testimony Thursday afternoon in an action on contract brought by Louis Paehl and wife of Kerhonkson against Benjamin Goldberg and at the conclusion reserved decision and directed that plaintiff submit findings.

Paehl claimed that in August of 1934 he owned a farm near Kerhonkson and secured Goldberg to build a barn 20 by 30 feet in size. The barn was to be fully equipped and the price specified was $700. The plaintiff paid down $200 and gave fourteen notes for the balance of $500. The notes were negotiable and have been paid.

Two weeks after the contract was entered into work was commenced and before the work was done Paehl went to New York City for the winter. When he returned he found the barn not completed. At the time he left only the frame and roof was up. In the spring he found the barn uncompleted and what had been completed was damaged by the past winter. He inquired of Goldberg about the job and was told the job would not be finished. The notes had been endorsed over to the Ellenville Lumber Company.

Stanley P. Hall, Allgerville builder, was called to tell about the structure and the value. He said the foundation had been laid on top of the ground and the frost was responsible for the heaving and damage to the building. The concrete floor was concrete thrown over the ground with no foundation and was useless. There were no braces in the building and it was from a foot to 16 inches out of plumb. His figure to put it in shape was $443.18.

Alice Scardfield, State Eastern Star Leader, Is Honored

ALICE M. SCARDFIELD

On Saturday evening, May 23, nearly 1,200 people, members of the Order of the Eastern Star, gathered to pay tribute to Most Worthy Alice M. Scardfield, grand matron of the Grand Chapter of the State of New York and Most Worthy Harry V. Gooderson, grand patron. This was the homecoming of the grand matron to her own district and a meeting of great importance to the members of the order in this section. The meeting was called to order by Howard M. Rose, grand marshal, followed by greetings from Ruth Hook, associate grand marshal.

Mrs. Mary J. Howard, district deputy grand matron, and William H. Wiles, assistant grand lecturer of the district, were escorted to a position west of the altar. They had as an escort the worthy matrons and worthy patrons of the district. R. W. Mary J. Howard was presented by Mrs. Ethel M. Jones, acting grand conductress and William H. Wiles was presented by Mrs. Cora B. Wiles, his wife, and the acting associate grand conductress of the evening. The meeting was then formally opened. During the opening ceremonies the flag presentation was given by 12 color bearers of the Greene-Clister district. After the singing of the National Anthem, each color bearer escorted her flag to a position in front of a window where they were stationed during the meeting. The opening and closing prayers were given by Mrs. Edna L. Van Tassel, grand chaplain. Mrs. Muller sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

Edward M. Stanbrough introduced the Hon. Conrad J. Heinselman, mayor of the city of Kingston, who later welcomed the assemblage, mentioning his pleasure of again meeting with the members from the various parts of the state. He also paid a splendid tribute to the most worthy grand matron, who is a resident of this city and to the most worthy grand patron.

Most Worthy Alice M. Scardfield and Most Worthy Harry V. Gooderson were escorted west of the altar and presented to the district deputy grand matron and assistant grand lecturer, who welcomed the matrons and patrons. A song of welcome to the most worthy grand matron, "You Are the Sweetheart of the Eastern Star," was sung by Mrs. James Snyder. The honored guests were escorted by nearly 300 present and past grand officers and present matrons and patrons.

The grand patron gave an inspiring address which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. In her message she paid a glowing tribute to the memory of Most Worthy Grace V. Merritt, a past grand matron from this district, who before her untimely death was a great help and inspiration to the grand matron and the members of this district and state. She also made a plea for the project of the year which is very near to her heart, and thanked the district for and those who had helped in any way to make the evening a success. She thanked the district deputy grand matron for the kindness she had shown her not only this year but always.

The grand patron gave an interesting address, paying tribute to the civility of the grand matron which more than anything else had endeared her to the members and closed with a beautiful poem entitled "Home."

Presentations were made by Mrs. Mae L. Dean and Odell F. Johnston, past grand officers representing the Greene-Clister district.

Mrs. Bertha M. Baylor made a presentation from the Alice M. Scardfield Club.

Another lovely presentation was made by Violet Schmalzke, beloved queen of Rip Van Winkle Triangle accompanied by members of Rip Van Winkle Triangle.

The most worthy grand patron presented a gift to the grand matron from the members of his district in Manhattan for the project.

Mrs. Lena Burgher, worthy matron of Clinton Chapter, of Kingston, the home chapter of the grand matron, presented a pledge for the furnishing of a room at the home in Orleans.

Other interesting addresses were given by Mrs. Mae E. Adams, associate grand matron of the grand chapter; Harry W. Stacy, associate grand patron of the grand chapter; Mrs. Georgina Scardfield, the mother of the grand matron and the present grand treasurer.

Following Mrs. Scardfield's address the district deputy presented a gift to Mrs. Scardfield, one of the most wonderful "mothers" in the state of New York and in recognition of her splendid services to the order and in appreciation of her contribution to the order of her beloved daughter, "Alice" whom the members of the Greene-Clister district are so proud to number among their own. Mrs. Scardfield responded in a very gracious manner as did Mr. Stacy to a presentation made by Mr. Stanbrough.

A gift was presented to the grand patron to be given to his mother from the members of the district.

During the evening a lighted birthday cake was presented to the grand patron by Mrs. Ethel M. Jones in recognition of his birthday from a friend. This was a novel presentation and was very much appreciated. A gift accompanied the cake.

The flags were retired under escort of Harry Rose, grand marshal, and the meeting was closed in due form.

A solo "Light Out Sweetheart," a parting tribute, was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Jessie Wolfersteig. This brought to a close a very beautiful meeting and one long to be remembered by the members of the district and their friends. Only once before in the history of the order has a grand matron been selected from this district and from this city and it was indeed a gala occasion.

The decorations of the auditorium were very beautiful. Along the sides of the building were placed trellises covered with all kinds of garden flowers. Between each trellis was placed a beautiful American flag. The most beautiful part of the decorations was the East where the curtains were parted just before the introduction of the grand matron. It displayed a garden of lovely white picket fence and beautiful garden flowers, a white arch with seat in the center and flower box overhead containing real geraniums. Boxes containing pinks and other garden flowers were found here and there in the garden. An old stone walk led from the white picket fence to the archway and along its path were set pieces of scenery representing garden flowers. The artistic talent of Albert H. Shultis made all of this possible. Garden seats were placed in the garden for the grand officers. The lights were under the direction of A. C. Hendry.

The acting grand officers for the evening were: Mrs. Ethel M. Jones, grand conductress; Mrs. Cora B. Wiles, associate grand conductress; Miss Edna H. Schepmoes, grand secretary; Mrs. Carrie S. Muller, grand organist; John Fluckiger, grand sentinel.

Reception Given

Prior to the meeting at the Auditorium a reception in honor of Most Worthy Alice M. Scardfield and Most Worthy Harry V. Gooderson was held at the Stuyvesant Hotel. This was followed by a sumptuous banquet, served in the usual Stuyvesant manner, to more than 250 grand officers and members of the order, the entire dining room being turned over to the guests who had assembled to pay tribute. During the banquet music by Zucca's orchestra and singing by the guests of songs of tribute to the grand matron, grand patron and other honored guests added to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mrs. Helen Fry, grand chaplain, gave the invocation at the banquet.

During the evening a distinctively beautiful degree was presented depicting a "Garden of Love." This degree was given by R. W. Mary J. Howard, district deputy grand matron, the worthy matrons, associate matrons, conductresses and associate conductresses with R. W. Edna L. Van Tassel as chaplain. Worthy Frieda Hayes as queen and Worthy Gladys Muller and Sisters Jessie Wolfersteig and Grace Smith as soloists.

This garden was one of beauty and splendor as through it passed the May Queen, regal and lovely in her court costume of white satin, train, preceded by attendants who formed an arch with shepherd crooks under which she passed to be met by the district deputy and escorted to the east. A song, "Welcome Sweet Springtime," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Gladys Muller. Her majesty then proclaimed to the subjects of the realm of stardom that they had come to pay loving tribute to one who has been the inspiration for this garden in the Greene-Clister district, Most Worthy Alice M. Scardfield.

In the "Garden of Love" was found a star and a sun dial, emblematic of the solid foundation and high principle of the order and of her ability to stimulate friendship as well as of her loyalty to the society.

As the May Queen waved her wand to summon the radiant blossoms the worthy matrons of the district, in pink costumes with pink satin hats and sashes, accompanied by the associate matrons, gowned in white and wearing pink capes and hats, presented a picture of grace and beauty as they entered the "Garden of Love", each matron being presented by her associate matron.

As the district deputy escorted the guest of honor through the golden gate of progress, Sister Grace Smith very sweetly sang, "The Beautiful Garden of Roses" by Johann C. Schmidt. After a loving tribute to the grand matron by the district deputy the journey through the garden was continued, the grand matron pausing before the matron of each chapter in the district who presented to her bouquets of flowers, receiving from her home chapter the precious flower of true friendship and the Rose of Love from the district presented by the district deputy. Now to the fragrance of the flowers was added the sweet melody of song—"Moonlight and Roses" by Edwin H. Lemare, beautifully rendered by Sister Jessie Wolfersteig.

A beam of light that found its way in the hands of an officer a divining rod which the May Queen explained must be cut at midsummer night when the stars are in particularly favorable position. Then the divining rod bearer, the worthy matron of Clinton Chapter, slowly walked through the garden seeking a hidden treasure. The divining rod suddenly pointed to "Love". The gate of love was opened and through it was borne hidden treasure in the form of gifts presented by the worthy matrons, associate matrons, conductresses and associate conductresses of the Greene-Clister district. In leaving this garden of love, grown by the members of the district, the most worthy grand matron passed through the portal of achievement, receiving in recognition of her splendid work, a white rose from the worthy matron of her chapter. From the East the grand matron graciously, and with sincerity, expressed her pleasure, appreciation and thanks.

Now into the fragrance and beauty of the garden were escorted R. W. Mae E. Adams, associate grand matron, R. R. Beulah Walters (grand conductress, and R. W. Rebecca McNab, associate grand conductress, who also received gifts from the Greene-Clister district. After gracious responses these honored guests were escorted to the East. A solo, "At Parting" by James H. Rogers, G. Schirmer, was charmingly rendered by Worthy Gladys Muller and prayer was offered by R. W. Edna L. Van Tassel.

The scene truly reminded one of a garden in the springtime, radiant with color and promise. The dainty costumes of the worthy matrons, who were gowned in pink, the associate matrons in white with pink capes and hats, the conductresses, wearing white with aprons of pink roses petals and pink bonnets, the associate conductresses, carrying shepherd crooks, gowned in white and wearing pink white hats adorned with pink rose buds, together with the floral decorations, arches and lighting effects, all made up a pageant as beautiful as it was symbolic. This beautiful degree was written especially for the occasion by Mrs. Edna M. Bowden of Patchogue, who, personally supervised the degree.

74,000 NEW MOBILGAS GLOBES IN SERVICE STATIONS
With many service stations reporting the biggest week-end business at this time of year in their history, Socoy-Vacuum's campaign on the introduction of new Mobilgas to New York, New England and Northern New Jersey went into its second week today.

A survey of "Soconyland" by company officials revealed that more than 20,000 service stations had been uniformly decorated to publicize the event, and more than 74,000 new Mobilgas globes are now in service station outlets.

The overnight distribution of these 74,000 gas pump globes was a feat in itself, officials pointed out. They were distributed and placed on pumps throughout Soconyland in a 12-hour period, by a motorized army of Socoy men.

"All indications show that introduction of new Mobilgas to the east has been a big success," F. J. Holman said in an interview today. "A survey of service stations and Mobilgas purchasers indicates that the public reception of the new Mobilgas has exceeded our expectations and that in actual performance the new gasoline fully lives up to the promises made for it."

"Service station operators state that motorists who have tried the new gas report noticeably better performance and make a point of saying so when they stop at a Mobilgas pump to re-fill on their journey."

The Standard Oil of New York Division of Socoy-Vacuum is using the largest newspaper campaign in its history to introduce the new product. Mobilgas, which is America's latest selling gasoline, supplants the well-known "Socoy" brand of gasoline, which has been sold in the east for many years.

Carola Goya at Community Concert

CAROLA GOYA

Carola Goya in her colorful and alluring Spanish dances "has charm, youth, beauty, skill—and, again beauty," according to Burton Homes. In her recitals of Spanish dances, she has created a veritable furore in every city in which she has appeared from the Atlantic to the Pacific. No other dancer has swayed audiences more completely or aroused them to greater enthusiasm.

The New York Evening Post has said of her, "Unusually beautiful of face and form, with poise, presence and personality, La Goya is a joy to watch. Her costumes, designed by Hortense d'Adlay, are just one gasp after another for their colorfulness and lavishness and she beautifies them all."

She will be one of the artists of the Kingston Community Concerts for the season of 1936-37, if all goes as is now expected in the way of a large and enthusiastic audience for the four performances.

The Deadly Black Widow

Spider an Enemy of All.
The female black widow, which is so much more deadly than the male that little attention is given the latter, is characterized chiefly by the glossy blackness of her shoe-button-like body which is about half an inch long; her long legs that sprawl over approximately two inches of space; and, of course, the distinguishing marking on the underside of her body. Though this is generally confined to the red hourglass figure, it sometimes varies both in color and shape. If not red the marking is yellow.

Since she has decidedly cannibalistic tendencies this spider is generally seen alone, for she early devours her mate along with the other insects upon which she feeds and her young, which burst from the egg-sac in early summer 50 to 100 strong, soon scatter to avoid being eaten by their mother. Her natural habitat is out of doors on the under side of rocks; but her coarse, sticky web is also to be found in dark corners of attics, basements and barns.

Origin of Azusa

An amusing, if not romantic, story is told by some of the origin of Azusa, at the gates of the San Gabriel canyon in Los Angeles county, writes Dorothy Marie Davis in the Los Angeles Times. It has all the appearance and lift of a Spanish-Indian name, and many hold it to be such. But the legend surrounding its beginning has a delightful ingenuity, which it would be a pity to discard. The time had come for the naming of the settlement and the citizens disputed which of their own surnames should be held thus for posterity. Each was unwilling to yield the honor to another and that plan was abandoned. Geographical position was considered as a background for a fine name. Natural features were urged. None was found satisfactory. At last a solution was presented which met with complete approval. They took the first and last letter of the alphabet and added the three letters by which their country was known. They had A-Z-U-S-A, or Azusa.

"Beware the Tick"

Ticks are of particular interest to the United States bureau of entomology because they attack both men and animals, particularly farm stock. In "Beware the Tick," in Hygiene, the Health Magazine, Walter E. Burton points out that the most deadly of tick-carried diseases is Rocky mountain spotted fever. In the Bitterroot valley in western Montana about 75 die of every 100 persons who contract the fever. Typhus, or rabbit fever, about which every hunter has heard, can be contracted by persons who handle rabbits. It can also be carried from wild animals to human beings, by several kinds of ticks, such as spotted fever is transmitted. Ticks also carry what is known as relapsing fever and a peculiar form of paralysis.

The collections in the old museum near Oslo, Norway, show that slavery not only from one locality to another, but also from one winter to another, points out Charles M. Dudley in "Centuries of Slavery." The museum contains a skeleton 2,000 years old believed to be the oldest in the world.

Conventions That Made History

TEDDY ROOSEVELT'S BOLT MAKES EASY WOODROW WILSON VICTORY.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE.

Washington (AP).—The Republican convention at Cleveland may be one of the liveliest political shows in years, but political oldtimers do not expect it to rival the fireworks set off in 1912 by "Teddy" Roosevelt.

That bitter battle between Roosevelt admirers and Taft supporters split the old, powerful platoon of Republican voters paving the way to easy victory for the Democratic candidate, Woodrow Wilson.

Charging that the Republican high command had "robbed" him of delegates, Teddy made a characteristic rip-roaring invasion of Chicago, the convention city, to lead his own fight for the presidential nomination.

"Teddy" in Action.

Fifteen minutes after arrival, he appeared on a hotel balcony and pitched into the first of a series of fighting speeches, charging the party bosses with "the naked theft" of delegates and claiming the preferential primaries had shown he was the choice of rank and file Republicans.

The Taft leaders replied that his unorthodox appearance at the scene of the convention was "just another Roosevelt bluff that had failed." Delegates shouted that opposing delegates should be in prison; Elihu Root delivering the temporary chairman's address was interrupted by derisive guffaws; speaker after speaker was called out of order.

How Taft Won.

The Taft lines held. With the majority of the accredited Roosevelt delegates sitting in dramatic silence, Taft won on the first ballot with 561 votes to 167 for Roosevelt. 41 for Robert M. La Follette, 41 for Senator Albert Cummings of Iowa and 2 for Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Some 344 Roosevelt delegates had abstained from voting. That night "bolting" Roosevelt followers held a separate convention in a nearby hall and nominated the colonel for the presidency. Governor Hiram Johnson of California was chosen as his running mate.

Many political prominent who

Among other supporters of Teddy were Senator Borah, Gifford Pinchot and William Allen White. In the Taft camp were Nicholas

TRIBUTE AND DUTY

America's thoughts on Decoration Day turn to the soldier dead whose graves we decorate with flags and flowers. The number of these graves has increased tremendously since the first Memorial Day. Not only have the Civil War graves grown more numerous, but other wars have added other graves. It is well to pay annual tribute to the memory of our soldiers, but it is a feeble gesture of gratitude unless we learn from the wars they fought, and profit by what we learn.

If our war heroes fought for their country for idealistic reasons, it is up to us to see that "these dead shall not have died in vain." It is up to us to fight the battles of peace, to preserve freedom and democracy, not for the few but for all of us alike. If war sacrifices have proved futile and the causes of conflict remain untouched, as in the World War, it is up to us to see that no more futile wars add new graves to America's soldier cemeteries. Memorial Day is a good occasion for looking forward as well as back, to plan for peace as well as to pay tribute to past warriors.

MUSIC AND MANNERS

The national high school band contests held recently in Cleveland are a revelation to adults in that city. Sixty bands from all parts of the country gathered for the ninth annual championship contest. Membership in bands ranged from 80 to 100 players. Uniforms were colorful and gay. The music was excellent. Indeed, the judges agreed that much of it was better than that produced by many professional bands.

The revelation, however, concerned the behavior of the thousands of youngsters rather than the quality of their music. Those boys and girls proved to be model guests. They indulged in no rowdy actions, but attended earnestly to their music during the contests, and enjoyed themselves happily and quietly when they had time on their hands. They did some sight-seeing and bought a few souvenirs. And they gathered in groups on sidewalks now and then to talk things over.

These young ladies and gentlemen were a distinct credit to their hometowns, their parents, their schools and teachers. Perhaps it was a decent pride in their musical achievements and a consciousness of their serious purpose that made them behave so differently from the average football crowd, or even adult convention crowds. At any rate, they deserve congratulations for good manners as well as good music.

THE RIGHT TO CRITICIZE

An old-fashioned American may be puzzled by a member of the New York legislature, when he says with indignation and horror: "I have seen college students parading through my city carrying banners attacking the government, state institutions and newspapers." Since when has it become unpatriotic to attack or criticize federal, state or municipal government, newspapers or any other public institutions?

There are always people "attacking" newspapers. On the whole, the papers don't mind. Newspapers also criticize or attack government—local, state or national—whenever they believe wrong policies are followed. It is the inalienable right of a free press, and it is a public service. Moreover, self-respecting citizens, with public spirit and minds of their own, do the same thing about their newspapers, their city government, their state and federal government.

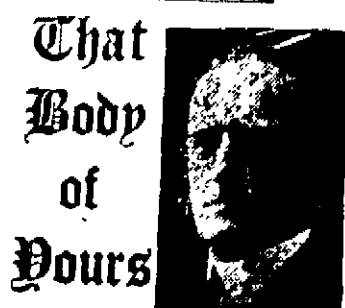

If it is treasonable to criticize the government, then there is treason on the floor of Congress every day, in any administration. There will soon be a great national convention on "attacking the government" and marching with hostile banners. And why not, if the criticism is sincere? For our whole system of political life is based on the right of dissatisfied minorities to criticize ruling majorities. Honest criticism is essential for good government. And it is better to have dishonest criticism than no criticism at all.

TAXING STAMP COLLECTORS

New stamp issues—and there are more than ever coming along now—puzzle many postoffice patrons. They are always being confronted with sheets of strange pictures that they would never suppose were to be tucked and pasted on letters. It seems impossible that the landscapes, especially, should be postage stamps. Even the letter-carriers are said to have trouble sometimes in identifying them as such.

And the collectors? A normal citizen would suppose they were annoyed by having to keep up with all these new issues, and pay out their money to keep their books up to date. But apparently they like it. It's nuts to them, even if it's nutty to other folks. And from such curious form of mental aberration Mr. Farley reaps a postal revenue that former incumbents never dreamed of. The government might make real money, almost enough to pay off its depression debts, if it proceeded likewise to exploit the weakness of all our other groups of monomaniac collectors. Spending for fads is the most painless form of expenditure.

That Body of Yours

PIMPLES-ACNE

Nothing is much more embarrassing and distressing than pimples (acne), coming as it does when the personal appearance means so much to the individual.

Even young people with a very fine skin and complexion may have crops of pimples occur from time to time. In fact even if the patient has a history of boils, appendicitis, tonsillitis (ailments which are commonly supposed to have some connection with acne) it may make no difference as far as having or not having acne.

Also pimples seem to come in those who are underweight, overweight, or of average weight, so that the nutrition or the nourishment of the body seems to make no difference as far as having acne is concerned.

That certain foods cause acne, or make it more severe has been proven. This is not because of anything wrong with these foods, but because something is wrong with the way the body handles these foods.

Formerly treatment was all applied to the skin itself—ointments, washes, electrolysis and X-ray treatments. These are still used and help greatly, but foods known to cause acne are now known, and arsenic, salicylic acid, mercury, mineral oil, and other substances are given internally.

Beginning with the diet, the foods that have been found to aggravate the condition are pastry, chocolate, candies, sundaes, jams, jellies, preserves, pork or gravies. These should be avoided entirely. Foods that should be eaten only in small quantities are bread, potatoes, cheese, macaroni, nuts, salted meats, very fat fish.

The second step is to try to locate any disturbance in the body such as infected teeth or tonsils, chronic indigestion, or constipation. Sometimes the removal of infected teeth, or the correction of constipation by such simple methods as the use of mineral oil or cascara, clears up the acne.

The outside treatment mentioned above is the use of hot and cold packs of plain soap and water; tar soap; coconut oil soap; sink, mercury or sulphur ointments; electrolysis and X-ray.

The internal treatment is the use of Fowler's solution (arsenic), liver extract, and the injection of vaccines by the hypodermic needle.

Skin specialists are agreed that all of these methods used, the X-ray treatments give the most satisfactory results. The X-ray treatments given once or twice a week for a few weeks by a skilled X-ray operator, corrects the condition in the majority of cases.

Gypsy Weather

By MARGARET BELL NOLTON

SYNOPSIS: In an effort to improve Hope Joris' health and persuade her to leave the mystery surrounding her, Dirk Joris has taken her father to come on from Texas. He proves a singularly forbidding minister, and the interview seems likely not to be a success. The night before Dirk's older brother, who married Dirk's mother, is very anxious to get her father out of the house, but when he leaves she insists he stay. He does, and Mary, the servant, is not to sure she heard strange words in Hope's room.

Chapter 33

ENIGMA

DIRK did not hear Hope go out.

He had dismissed him in a measure with Mary's report that Hope would be glad to see him. Next morning, before having breakfast, he inquired of Timothy if Mr. Devine had spent the night, learned that he had not, and made further inquiries of Mary.

Mary's report was rather rose-colored. Mrs. Joris was much better since her father's visit. But he had been obliged to go back... last night.

Dirk, still skeptical, knowing Mary's gift of credence, said:

"Does she really seem better?"

"But she does, sir," Mary answered brightly, and with traces of amazement at what she had to announce. "She was playing her guitar this morning." An emphatic nod as Dirk stared. "And singing, sir," she added.

"This was too much."

"I'm going in to see her," said Dirk.

"Not now, sir," pleaded Mary.

"I don't mean now. I mean during the afternoon. I expect to be home early."

Dirk stood thinking, and Mary asked:

"Did you telephone Miss Isabel, sir? She called up again last night."

"I shall," Dirk said.

"And do you know how Mister Rupert is, and if there's any chance of his being home soon?" Mrs. Joris asked him this morning.

"No, I don't," Dirk answered.

"Perhaps I'll know today, when Mr. Sanford Joris comes back. Say to Mrs. Joris that I'll be in to see her. This afternoon, about three o'clock."

Hope was up when Dirk came in. She sat in the big gilt and tapestry chair, mending a stocking. Her hair was smooth, the bruise-like shadows beneath her eyes were not so dark, and there was a trace of rouge on lips and cheek.

She wore the same pale yellow dress with the fur about the throat. Not far away the electric stove poured warmth from its fire-colored bowl, glowing like a great tropical flower.

"Too much?" she asked, indicating the stove.

And Dirk, who had come in tingling with cold, and full of fresh air, replied that he would get used to it. Mary, however, turned off the stove, and no one objected.

Dirk took the chair beside Hope's.

"Running up to Albany early tomorrow morning," he explained. "Be gone all day, and had to know about this sudden improvement. . . . You are better," he added, having looked her over.

The Rev. Devine, he had discovered, was actually on the way back home, having checked out of the Pennsylvania and taken a train shortly after midnight. That his visit had done Hope good, there was no question.

"So you forgive me for wiring him," he said, as if she had followed his thoughts. "For wanting to share my responsibility."

"All's well that ends well," she answered, as if she had indeed followed his thoughts. "Got my cigarettes?"

HE laid them on the table beside her—between the darning egg and a little pin-cushion full of needles and shaped like a tomato. He lit the cigarette and she had extracted, and picked up the pin-cushion.

She watched him examine it. Presently she laughed.

"You're funny," she said.

"Funny?" asked Dirk. He was smiling, too. Her laughter was infectious.

"Curious," she explained. "There's not anything you miss."

"Oh, yes, there is. Lots."

"Well, perhaps there is. But I didn't think you knew it. That cushion, now. You look at it, and you see how worn it is, and all the needles. And you conclude, 'What a domestic female she is! Which is all very well, but your premise is wrong. The cushion is Mary's.'"

"I see," Dirk said, and put the cushion down. "I shouldn't have started from wrong premises, however, if you would confide in me. If you would tell me, that is, just what sort of girl you really are."

His smile might have robbed the statement of any significance. She returned his smile.

"Confide in me? But why not?" She leaned toward him. "I don't even own a needle," she whispered. "And here's the way I darn. Well," as she stared. "What do you think of it?"

"I'd say," testified Dirk, "that you ride better than you sew."

"Horses," she admitted. "Yes, I know horses."

"You must miss them," he said. "We'll go for some rides when you get well."

"No," shaking her head. "I don't miss them. . . . Did Isabel get you?"

The leap from horses to Isabel was sudden, but Dirk made it.

"I called her this morning," he said. "The message was for you as well as for me. She wanted to remind me of a dance tonight, and to ask me to bring you. I suppose you got the invitation. The Vincents dance."

"I suppose so. I haven't opened any mail of that sort. Is Isabel your social conscience?"

"She is, rather. I'm apt to forget things. Joe Vincent is one of Isabel's good friends. It's his sister's debut. Do you feel like going?"

"Do you?" she asked. "With Rupert as ill?"

"Rupert's better," Dirk answered. "He wouldn't want you to stay in on his account."

She crushed out her cigarette. "I'm glad he's better. But I couldn't go."

"You don't want to go, my dear?"

"I do want to. I've got a new dress. Want to see it?"

MARY had gone out some time before. Hope rose and, going to the old oak, took from it a gown of diaphanous yellow, splashed with little gold stars. She spread it on the bed, looking down at it, standing with clasped hands, an attitude, it seemed to Dirk, of worship.

"I could get drunk on clothes," she said.

A slip of paper had fallen from the dress, an open bill whose figures Dirk could not help seeing as he picked it up. They surprised him, being small indeed.

"I didn't get it," she explained. "at the shop Rupert sent me to. Their label costs too much. I got only one dress there. . . . the one I wore to Elmer's dinner. This one is just as pretty, don't you think?"

"Prettier," Dirk said sincerely.

"And here are the slippers that look as if they were made of green-gold beetles' wings. And Rupert said he was going to get me some big bracelets of hammered gold. They sounded savage and wonderful, like the ones Isabel wore that night at Adelaide's, when you danced with her so much. But I guess he forget that, too."

Dirk said impulsively:

"I'll get you some savage bracelets."

She smiled, wistfully touching the starry gown.

Why wouldn't she go? he wondered. Was she afraid, fearful of meeting some acquaintance out of her old life?

It was not that. Something told him it was not that. Perhaps she was not so well as she pretended.

"Have you strength enough to go?" he asked.

"I have," she said. "But I have to save it."

Mary came into the room, and contrived to give Dirk a warning look.

"I'm not suggesting that you dance," he explained to Hope. "I told Isabel you wouldn't be up to that. I asked her to pick you out a box, where you could sit and look on."

Hope laughed. "Along with the dowagers."

"I could carry you to the car," he urged. "And the elevators are near the hall-room. Couldn't you make it?"

She was looking at him. He had never seen her eyes so soft and wondering.

"I couldn't go," she said. "and keep from dancing. Not when I heard the music. But I want. . . . Still the soft and wondering look. 'I want you to know that I appreciate your thinking of it, your wanting me to see the lights and all.' She faltered. Her hand rested on his sleeve. 'I appreciate it,' she said again.

Her eyes disturbed him as always. He managed a casual:

"That's nothing. But you mustn't mind not dancing."

She watched Mary go out of the room. Then she sat down in the big chair. She touched the other chair.

"Please, Dirk. I want to tell you something."

Hope tried hard, tomorrow, to tell Dirk something important.

Kearney to Become Principal at Cornwall

Carroll Frederic Kearney on Tuesday evening presented his resignation as supervising principal of the high school to the Centralized Board of Education in Marlborough, after seven years' service there. It will be effective at the end of the term.

Mr. Kearney has taken the principalship of Cornwall on Hudson High School and will begin the duties in September, succeeding John A. Hitzelberg, who recently was appointed district superintendent.

Born on December 8, 1902, in Kingston, a son of Ernest W. and Ella B. Kearney, he was graduated from Kingston High School in June, 1920, and from the Liberal Arts College of Syracuse University in 1924 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts cum laude.

He served as assistant instructor of English in New York State College of Forestry in 1923-24, after which he was associated with the Babcock & Wilcox Mfg. Co., and the Standard Oil Co. of New York for several years. He took up public school teaching in September, 1926.

On May 19, 1926, Mr. Kearney married Hester Doremus Livingston of Kingston. From 1926 to 1929 he served as principal of Greenville (N. Y.) Free Academy, and since has been supervising principal of Marlborough High School. He attended Syracuse University summer session in 1927.

Mr. Kearney also attended Teachers' College, Columbia University summer session, 1928, through 1931 and was granted the Master of Arts Degree, together with a Principal of High School Diploma in 1931.

He is a member of the Marlborough Presbyterian Church, Kingston Lodge No. 10, F. & A. M., Marlborough Lions Club, Schoolmasters' Council of the Highlands, and New

Consider More Soil Practices

Ithaca, N. Y., May 29.—Additional soil-conserving practices for which New York farmers will receive payments under the agricultural conservation program are being considered by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture.

The scope of the program is being broadened so that more farmers may take part and become eligible for benefit payments, reports C. G. Bradt, assistant state administrator of the program.

The new practices under consideration would allow farmers to receive payments for applying lime and superphosphate to crop land now in hay. Heretofore, payments for top-dressing applied only to pasture land. By broadening this practice to include hay land as well as pasture land, it is believed that dairy farmers will have another means to improve their land.

Allowing farmers more time to apply the necessary fertilizers is another modification of the program under consideration. It has been stated, says Mr. Bradt, that applications of fertilizer must be "at or before the time of seeding," which excluded later applications. Some farmers have found that they did not apply enough at seeding time to comply with the provisions for payments. They were willing to make up the deficiency later, but would receive no payments under the rules. The date may possibly be extended to June 1.

To take part in the program, a farmer must fill out a work sheet and file it with his county agricultural conservation committee. This is recommended even for farmers who now do not wish to take part, says Mr. Bradt, because it leaves the door open for a change of mind. Otherwise, no payments could be made.

Concrete House Under English Field Shelters Millionaire From Air Raids

The home now being designed in London (AP)—Plans for Britain's first bomb-proof and gas-proof underground home, where the owner can sleep without fear of air raids, have been announced by a firm of British architects.

It is to be built for an English millionaire, at an estimated cost of $150,000, under a bomb shadow in Hertfordshire. Identity of the owner is a secret.

It will be a luxury mansion, with more than 20 rooms, all air-conditioned. A turn of a switch will flood the rooms with artificial sunlight.

Walls of the eight bedrooms and four living rooms are to be of glass, through which will stream artificial sunlight.

Further killed.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 29 (AP).—A strike was killed and several injured today in a strike and gun fight between police and some of 10,000 striking construction workers.

NEW U. S. BUILDINGS TO SUIT LOCALITY

Outward Appearances Show Great Diversity.

Washington.—Three basic architectural designs account for the simplicity and beauty of lines of the hundreds of federal post office buildings now springing up all over the United States.

The depression and the Public Works administration have made new post office buildings as common as "little red schoolhouses" once were. The procurement division of the Treasury department has awarded 780 construction contracts since February 14, 1935. A great majority of these have been for post offices. Several hundred remain to be built.

The outward appearances of these structures are almost as diversified as the contracts are numerous. Yet they all trace their origin back to three basic designs: The colonial, found most frequently in the Atlantic seaboard area; the contemporary or modern, found in all communities of the country; and the Spanish or mission type, in the Southwest.

Local Scenes Studied.

"This is not an attempt to make 'canned' architectural drawings or designs," one of the chief architects of the procurement division explained. "It is an attempt to make the post office buildings fit or blend into their surroundings as if they had grown up out of the ground in their respective localities—in short, local products."

The procurement division has developed scores of designs of each type of architecture used. In some localities where two types of architecture prevail, a post office building in which both types are blended may be constructed.

"In considering plans for a post office building in any city or town there are three basic requirements which we must take into account," an architect explained. "We must consider the total floor space required or likely to be required in the reasonably near future in that locality by the government. We must take into account the historic or traditional type of architecture in that locality. We also must consider climatic conditions."

Space Requirement Survived.

Space requirements by the government have been carefully surveyed in every city and town of the United States. A "space control" department has been set up within the procurement division to inventory these space requirements and the space available. This "space control" department allots the space occupied by government bureaus and agencies throughout the country.

"We have found," the architect explained, "that when we take the three basic requirements for post office buildings in two or three hundred cities, itemize them on cards and shuffle those cards thoroughly, they fall into a comparatively few designs. From those basic designs we have worked out a multitude of designs and types which fit virtually any requirement."

Gen. Ludendorff Still Denouncing Hindenburg

Munich.—Gen. Erich Ludendorff, seventy years old, is still fighting the past war and denouncing his former chief, Von Hindenburg, while those in charge of modern armies are getting ready for the next conflict.

In a letter filled with vituperative strictures upon the dead Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff asserts that Germany's late field marshal-president was in reality his (Ludendorff's) subordinate.

Ludendorff's anger was aroused by a book review of his recent work, "The Total War." The review was written by Lieut. Gen. August von Cramon in the "Aufreichte," a sort of house organ of the Hohenzollern family.

Von Cramon had quoted the following as coming from Hindenburg when he discussed his breach with the former quartermaster-general:

"I forgot everything that Ludendorff has done to me after the war; until my last breath I shall remain grateful to him for the service he rendered me as my first assistant."

To this Ludendorff replies:

"I reject these words in the sharpest terms possible. I have rendered no services to Gen. von Hindenburg. I wasn't his 'employee.' I reject the expression 'assistant' and refer to the great attendant upon the selection of the highest commander who was placed at my side and not I at his. He was my assistant (and I saw also)."

Provide Foolproof Room in Jail for Visitors

Providence, R. I.—Rhode Island state prison has a new "fool proof" room where prisoners see visitors.

Dr. Arthur E. Martin, chief of the jail and reformatories division, said he expects the room will defy any effort to pass contraband to visitors. The room is the latest in prison equipment and was installed at a cost of $5,000.

In each of three walls are six windows and directly below them are speaking devices. The window is of bullet-proof glass. Stranger and visitor sit on opposite sides of the window.

Once they are in the room, neither the prisoner nor the visitor can be released except by a guard. Two guards remain in the room, but they are secured and have no arms.

Nothing deters high school kids more than seeing their father in a cell.

STATE DECLARES 'WAR' ON SECRET BLACK LEGION

Determined Stand.

Jerusalem, May 29 (AP).—British authorities showed a stiffening determination to quell Arab-Jewish rioting today with an order by High Commissioner Sir Arthur Grenfell Vachon authorizing use of tear gas in the event of further disorders. A total of five persons, it was disclosed today, died in the Holy Land violence yesterday—a British constable in Jerusalem, three Arabs in a clash near Jenin and one Arab in Jaffa.

Kay Bros. Circus Here Today

Kay Bros. Circus, which travels in 22 trucks, all newly painted and with all new canvas, is showing at the Kingston Fair Grounds today, after noon and evening. The evening show will start at 8 o'clock. Kay Bros. opened in Portsmouth, Va., April 15. Reports are that they have been doing a good business and played to two packed houses at Hudson last night. They show in Mid-Western Saturday. They emphasize the fact that they carry a "clean" show, with no games or gambling of any kind.

One of the leading attractions is Miss Mary Ellen Kellow, tight-wire artist, whose parents, by the way, are the owners of the show. Other features are:

Master Troupe of horizontal bar experts.

Captain Harry Matthews' wire-walking lion.

Prof. Pickard's trained seal.

Dancing elephants (one of them walks on a 4-inch board and turns completely around on the board).

Kathie Japanese Troupe, featuring the head-balancing on the swinging trapeze.

There are the usual number of funny clowns and the other features that thrill and entertain the circus lover.

Ulster Firemen to Hold Convention and Parade in Kingston

The first annual convention and parade of the recently organized Ulster County Volunteer Fireman's Association will be held in Kingston in July. Tentative dates for the convention have been fixed for Friday and Saturday, July 24 and 25, with the annual parade to be held on the last day of the convention.

Officers for the ensuing year are planned to be elected on the first day of the convention.

There are about 30 fire companies in Ulster county who are members of the association, and all of the companies will be represented at the convention, and it is expected that the majority of them will take part in the parade which closes the convention.

Further plans for the convention are to be discussed at a meeting to be held early in June.

The usual holiday collections will be made and the lobby in the Central post office and the two branches will remain open the usual holiday hours for the benefit of box holders. The stamp and other windows will be closed all day in the post office and branches.

Grenfell Worker to Lecture at Tea, June 11

Miss Eleanor Cushman, a charming and delightful speaker, who has been closely associated with Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, K. C. M. G., the famous Labrador Medical Missionary, for many years, will tell of the life and work of that extraordinary man at a tea on Thursday afternoon, June 11, on the Governor Clinton Hotel grounds. The affair is sponsored by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck and others.

In 1832, Sir Wilfred, then Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, a recent and brilliant graduate of London's famous hospitals, with an unusual future awaiting him in that great metropolis, spurred by the challenge of social service work in the slums of London, and converted to a life of active Christianity by America's great Dwight L. Moody, gave up the opportunity for riches and fame in London, to seek a field of medical service and sacrifice among a fishing population of English ancestry, Indian and Eskimo, who were waging a hard, meagre and risky livelihood from the bleak, barren, dangerous, subarctic, icebound shores of Labrador.

To people of English heritage, the descendants of men who fought with Drake, and made England's navy the mistress of the seas, he brought healing and strength. These people had never known a doctor, and considered accident and disease as "God's Will," and unavoidable. Childbirth occurred safely or not, as Providence willed.

To those who were sick at heart he brought comfort and spiritual healing. To those in distress he brought improvement of economic conditions; hospitals, schools and education for their children; orphanages, and industries to supplement the very meagre family budget.

Further north on the bleak Labrador Coast, Indians, descendants of those who once roamed the Catskills and were driven further and further north by the everwidening settlement of the white man, were likewise ministered to in body and spirit; also the Eskimo, those outposts of the human race who wring a seemingly impossible living from glacial boulders and stormy arctic waters filled with codfish, seals, walrus, whales, polar bears and icebergs. Magic and superstition were replaced by Christianity and modern scientific healing.

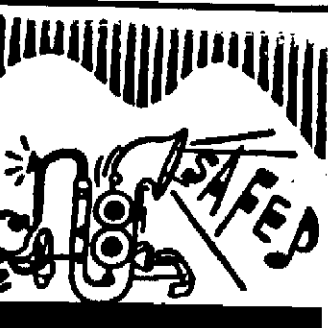

A lone man came out from the doors of the evangelistic meeting of Moody in London, and sailed up and down the thousand miles or more of fog and ice-bound, uncharted coast, in his ministry of love and relief of suffering. For his work and character his King has knighted him, and he is known, loved and admired by all the English speaking peoples of the earth. But his real reward is in the hearts and lives of thousands of people whose suffering has been alleviated; whose health has been given back to them; whose lives have been changed and made happy and fruitful.

Although in failing health from his long and arduous ministry, his undaunted spirit still guides the work, although its more active part is carried on by others. Five hospitals and several nursing stations, bring modern medicine and public health to the Labrador people. Schools have brought literacy in the place of illiteracy. Orphanages are still necessary for children whose fathers have "gone down to the sea in ships," and never come back, but the children face life bravely and well equipped to meet its battles and problems.

Miss Cushman is an interesting speaker, and Kingston is most fortunate that the interest of Judge Hasbrouck and others will give the opportunity to hear her informal lecture. The public is generally invited, and tickets may be obtained from any of the sponsors or at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The proceeds from the sale of the tickets will go to further the work of Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell.

Honorary Tests

Columbus, O. (AP).—When Ohio State University agriculture specialists learned that Ohio tomato growers lost $300,000 last year, they combined university resources with those of several canning companies in a campaign to grow more tomatoes for less money. The specialists are devoting full time to testing soils and an experimental project has been started to determine factors influencing tomato yields and to perfect disease control methods.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

Umpire's Eyesight

Tampa, Fla.—Mutt Hammond, umpire in the South Atlantic League, told this one on himself and a fellow umpire:

After a game at Macon, Ga., the ump's car collide with one driven by a woman. She demanded explanations.

"Sorry, ma'am, but he didn't see you," Hammond said.

"You didn't see a machine as large as mine? You must be baseball umpires," she stormed.

The boys were blushing furiously as she drove away.

Tacoma, Wash.—Delegates to the Washington state convention of master plumbers, indignantly denying the old saw about forgetting tools, arranged a contest to show their skill with solder.

visitors and reporters called in. Suddenly the contest was called off. The committee had forgotten the solder.

Twice Hooked

BOY KEEPS UP WITH CLASS WHILE IN BED TWO YEARS

Marion, Ky. (AP).—The fact that a spine injury kept him out of school for more than two years failed to prevent Randall Phillips from being graduated on schedule with the 1935 Marion High School class.

Two years ago Phillips suffered a dislocated vertebra, a fractured skull and severe lacerations when a grapevine on which he was swinging plunged him over a cliff and onto a pile of rocks.

Since then the boy has been confined to bed except for a few hours daily when he has had his study periods. With the help of faculty members and classmates, he completed his course.

THE PRICE OF ORDINARY GASOLINE

NO DOUBT you are putting your car in shape for that Holiday trip... Make the finishing touch a full tank of the new Triple-Action Tydol Gasoline.

For here's a gasoline that not only drives your motor but oils and cleans it too!... And it does all "3 jobs" at the price you now pay for ordinary "1 job" gasoline.

Every single gallon of Triple-Action Tydol Gasoline contains both a patented top-cylinder oil and a carbon-solvent. Working together they oil and protect valves, rings and all upper motor parts. They keep down carbon, rust and corrosion... smooth out motor action and step-up motor results. That's why we say: "Tydol drives...oils...and cleans."

High School News

Diplomas Not Called For.

Many of the Regents' diplomas issued to last June's graduates are still in the office at the high school. Since school will soon close, graduates or members of their families are asked to call for them as soon as possible. Principal Dumm will appreciate it a great deal if this is attended to.

Prisma Eyeglass Contribution.

Prisma, mindful of the need for eyeglasses to insure perfect vision and consequently improved school work, has decided to put $25 into the hands of the school nurses to be used for that purpose. Part of the sum was drawn from the proceeds of the "Blue Forest" recently sponsored by Prisma, and part was drawn from Prisma's large reserve fund. This was decided at the meeting of all room executives and representatives to Prisma, Tuesday afternoon. Hermine Lawatsch, president of Prisma, presided at the meeting.

An Innovation.

A pleasant innovation has been decided upon for this year's commencement dance which will be held in the Municipal Auditorium. Refreshments will be served and the dance will last an hour longer than heretofore, providing the couples go home. The committee in charge of arrangements, consisting of Boaz Shattan, chairman, Marjorie Osterhoudt, James Harder, Ruth Denike, John Decker and Mary O'Connor are negotiating now for an orchestra.

Debate Tryout.

Tuesday evening, another tryout was held in room 11 for the variety debating team as part of the intensive preparation the teams are engaged in for the final debate with Monticello to decide the championship.

Tryouts will soon be held for next year's variety. A four minute speech must be prepared on some debatable subject presenting definite strong arguments.

Photograph Enlarged.

Due to the clearness of the atmosphere, Miss Cordes was able to take some excellent snapshots on the German "Ausflug" May Day afternoon. One was a six mile view which turned out remarkably clear and another of Devil's Lake was so perfect that it has been enlarged. The enlargement is on display in room 7.

DUSO Press Conference.

All local high school students interested in Journalism are welcome to attend the annual spring meeting of the DUSO Press Association at the high school Saturday, June 6. Dame Rumor will entertain the young journalists from Monticello, Liberty, Ellenville and a number of other schools. The business meeting will be followed by a luncheon. The highlight of the entire conference will be an address by Frederick Sayder, well known lecturer.

New York Trip Cancelled.

The Social Science Club decided to cancel the trip to New York, due to lack of sufficient number signing up.

Nature Club Contest.

All bird lovers have found it no task to compete in the contest which the Nature Study Club has sponsored for all of its members. The names of birds actually seen and recognized, their color marking and habitat were handed in. Two prizes, valuable in the study of nature, will be given to those two who handed in the longest lists of birds correctly described, the birds actually having been seen. Miss Mauterstock and John Corey are the judges.

Commencement Speakers.

At a meeting of the senior class Monday morning, Principal Dumm announced the valedictorian and salutatorian, the two having the highest scholastic record for four years work. Harry France is valedictorian and Conrad Kantler is salutatorian. Since Conrad Kantler had been elected class critic to speak class night, the class critic will be chosen by the three faculty advisers.

AMERICAN THEATRE GROUP BEGINS SUMMER SEASON

The American Theatre Group, under the direction of Jack Stern, New York producer, opens its summer stock season Monday, June 29, at the Red Barn Theatre, Saugerties. The first production on the group's proposed schedule of plays about American life, by un-established authors, will be "Unloved Wife," a comedy drama in three acts by Florence Edna May, which is now in rehearsal in New York. Casting is being completed by Jack Stern from his offices in New York.

The Nebraska Game, Forestation and Park Commission saved many thousands of game birds during last winter's siege through a "Buy a Bag of Bird Feed" campaign. Approximately 200 tons of nourishing grain were distributed through the covers of the state. Why not "Plant a Bag of Game Food" now? One bag planted now will produce many hundreds of pounds of life-saving nourishment when the heavy weather sets in.

Bonomi Moves to Set Aside Verdict

Thursday afternoon in Supreme Court John Bonomi moved to set aside the verdict of no cause for action in the negligence action which was tried recently in which Jack Morentz, an infant by guardian, sued Dr. Andrew Green Foord. The action arose over the death of the Morentz child who was struck by a milk truck in Ellenville last November. Mr. Bonomi argued that from the evidence the jury could not have properly found a verdict for defendant if the testimony of the witnesses had been given due consideration. He pointed out various parts of the testimony which he said conflicted and then recited figures and distances which he held were conclusive evidence of the neglect of the driver of the truck and told the court that if all of the facts and distances had been given consideration by the jurors it would have been impossible to find for the defense. He asked that the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted.

For the defendant A. J. Cook appeared and stated that no long argument was necessary in regard to the motion. He said the testimony of the witnesses had been heard by the jurors and the jury had seen the witnesses upon the stand and on the testimony had rendered a verdict which he did not believe could be disturbed by the court.

Papers were submitted and decision reserved on the motion. Sixteen murders in Cincinnati during the first 137 days of 1936 were 14 less than for the corresponding period in 1935.

Columbus Cathedral
The Columbus cathedral, Havana, is situated in Cathedral square at the foot of Empedrado street. Columbus cathedral was the center of religious ceremonies held under the Spanish domination. It maintains as its most valuable tradition the fact that it held within its walls the remains of Christopher Columbus—removed to Seville when Spanish rule ended in Cuba. There is a contention, of course, that the real Columbus relics are buried in Santo Domingo and that those that were once interred here were the relics of Diego Columbus, brother of the great navigator.

Socrates' Poison
The poison which Socrates drank was an infusion of the leaves and stems of the hemlock which is a deadly poison even in small doses. According to his biography, he conversed with his followers almost up to the time of his death, his vital powers gradually being shown by the tepor and coldness which, commencing in his feet and hands, spread to his entire body, the brain being affected last.

Just Enough for One
A famous wit once excused himself from walking with an elderly lady on account of the bad weather. A little later, however, she met him walking alone. "So," she said, "it cleared up pretty quickly for you. It seems 'just a little' he quickly replied, 'just enough for one, but not quite enough for two!'"

Redwood Tumble-Proof
California redwood timber makes an ideal service to paint, stain or enamel, while beautiful durable, fire-resistant roofs of shingles have been used by home owners for generations. Shrinkage is practically low in this wood, and it is said that decay will not set in, as in other kinds of timber.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

New beach wear takes exciting trend.
Siana Merwin

The new lines of beach and bathing wear are just as exciting as other garments for midday's summer wardrobe. Beach wear has many new and novel angles this season with the introduction of flared skirts, interesting adjustable necklines, detachable skirts, culottes, hooded capes, linen suits, alpaca suits, important polka dots, and new and novel stitches and color combinations in light weight knitted suits. Suits with a flared skirt or the one-piece suits with the detachable flared skirts, give a flattering, smart feminine line. The two-piece affair sketched above shows a one-piece suit of sulphur yellow wool with halter neck and tri-color embroidered shield at front. Accompanying it is a flared, detachable skirt of the same color, with a ribbed waist band in tri-color to fit the figure.

The polka dot skirt suit, also knitted in jacquard design, has two-toned polka dots of crotle brown and yellow on a natural background. This smart suit is jersey lined and has an adjustable neck that can be worn either as a halter or strap back.

Home Institute GIVE A SUCCESSFUL PARTY

A real side-splitter is that new game they're playing at Jean's party, called "Take My Word." Fred who was declared to be "it" retired to the kitchen while the crowd picked out a word for him. An adverb, it had to be. They finally chose "fiercely" and sent for Fred. "Margie, take my word and read the paper," ordered Fred. Margie went tearing through a newspaper, scowling and muttering. "Is my word 'angrily'?" asked Fred. "Your're getting warm, but you're not quite there," they told him. Bill "took Fred's word" and ate an apple fiercely. Mary dusted a chair fiercely, and finally Jim handed Jan a rose fiercely. "FIERCELY!" yelled Fred. "I guessed it after only half an hour."

Women Assemble Summer Clothing

Ithaca, N. Y., May 29—Seventy-five home bureau members of Cattaraugus county are assembling their summer wardrobes in preparation for the White House garden party and other festivities of the third triennial conference of the associated country women of the world in Washington, D. C., May 31 to June 12.

With the help of Margaret Morehouse of the New York state college of home economics, the home bureau women are selecting informal garments of cotton, linen, and silk which will be comfortable in the heat and which can be packed without crushing. As all degrees of formality exist in the capital city, they plan to dispense with gloves and evening dresses and to dress informally on all occasions.

At President and Mrs. Roosevelt's garden party, the women plan to wear hats and light summer afternoon dresses. While evening dresses may be worn at the banquet, many light summer frocks will be seen. For the meetings, short sleeved dresses will be correct and wide brimmed hats will protect against the glare of the sun. A handbag, large enough for notebooks, pencils, and programs and comfortable shoes are considered necessities.

Each home bureau woman has assembled her last year's spring and summer clothes to remodel and bring up-to-date with new accessories. Many articles will be dyed to make them fit a color scheme.

The women plan to have extra sets of accessories for their dresses and several blouses, if they plan to wear suits, because of little opportunity to wash and press them. They will travel in dark colored silk dresses which will not show soil easily, and carry light weight wool coats for possible cool evenings and boat trips.

NEGLECT OF CONSTIPATION* IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Delicious Cereal Corrects This Condition in a Natural Way

Immediate attention to constipation is important for two reasons. It causes discomfort, and may lead to headache and loss of appetite. It also tends to slow you down.

When elimination continues to be faulty, over a period of time, your general resistance may be lowered. And a weakened body is less able to fight off the infections that abound in every crowded place.

The most common type of constipation is that caused by insufficient "bulk" in meals. In Kellogg's All-Bran, you have a delicious source of effective "bulk."

Within the body, the "bulk" in All-Bran slowly matures, forms a soft mass and gently cleanses the system. This tempting cereal also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Serve on a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into tempting oatmeal, breads, etc. How much you eat to enjoy this natural laxative food instead of taking pills and drugs.

All-Bran is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lowly Tin Becomes An Art Metal

For Mexican Peasant Craftsmen

Wall sconces are really made from tin cans.

By MARGERY TAYLOR

Copyright, 1936, By McCall's Magazine For The Freeman

Mexican decoration is coming north—and with it comes tin as an amazing artistic metal.

Just because we have seen dozens of tin cans around the house for years, we have never imagined the clever, gay and attractive things which could be made from this metal. But our southern neighbors, the Mexican peasant craftsmen, have seen with different eyes, and the results are charming accessories which fit into almost any decorative scheme.

The tin "invasion" has come through California and the southwest. There they have discovered that Mexican art—even the more primitive peasant kind—fits delightfully into the sophisticated ultra-modern style of decoration. Here started the blending of the Spanish, Mexican and modern styles into "Americanized modern." It seems to be much more appealing to our tastes than the modern design from across the Atlantic.

The tin wall sconces and brackets—made really from tin cans—are interesting in many settings. Candlesticks come in all kinds of designs and there are trays and pitchers in fascinating shapes.

And Hidalgo, the clever artist who creates wax figures and gives one-man shows in New York occasionally, has given prestige to tin picture frames by using them to frame his figures. Several were exhibited at the Architectural League show this year.

So tin joins the delightful good-will procession from Mexico. First it was their charming native glass, in colors and shapes dating back to the early nineteenth century, then their pottery for informal summer tables. And now, tin in art.

Style Thermometer Reaches New High As Designers Create Summer Outfits

A thousand eyes peer from the sheer silk used to make this navy blue and white combination suit for hot weather wear. The two-piece frock is fastened in front with crystal tassels and topped with a short capelet of the same material. Lilly Roche designs a white straw panache beret to go with the suit. The outfit is completed by a white doekin bag and gloves.

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York (AP)—Hot weather costumes have hit a new high on the thermometer of chic. For those blistering days in town when the sun scorches city streets American designers have created the smartest outfits the fashion world has seen. They are clean cut and formal enough to be smart, sheer enough to be cool, and lightened with smart white touches which keep them looking crisp at all times.

Steel grey and ice white is the newest combination, but navy blue and sea foam white, forest green or wood brown, and daisy white, or black and chalk white also are big favorites. A two-piece suit or a frock topped by a jacket or cape make the smartest effects accented by accessories which harmonize.

Materials Vary

Navy blue and black organza, net, dotted Swiss, chiffon and sheer silk all are used to make simple frocks with fairly high necklines and short or long sleeves finished with snow white collars and cuffs of organza or pique. With them go matching short jackets (trim and fitted or loose and swaggy) or waist-length capes.

Prints with new smart patterns which are a decided variation from the old flower design are much in vogue. White or corolla colored

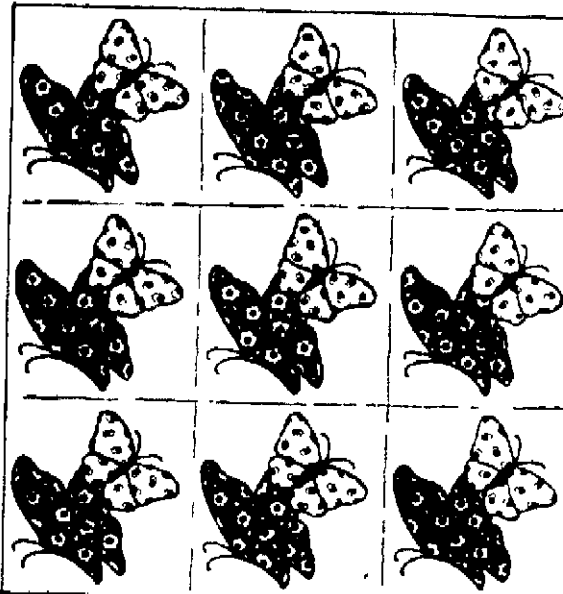

Suits Important

Suits of cotton pique, rayon suiting or "non-crushable" linen are other big favorites. Often they are worn without blouses.

Accessories put the finishing touches to the outfits. Nettle Rosenstein turns out smart town togs for hot days by adding flower toques, boutonnières and suede gloves all of the same shade—a white carnation toque and gloves with a putty crepe flecked with white and red carnation accessories with blue.

Other designers like big hats—wide brimmed flat crowned white or black straws and gloves to match with the ensembles. Slip-cover handbags, whose detachable washable cotton covers come in colors to harmonize with any costume, are another accessory which has found great favor.

FOR BLUE AND WHITE EDGING USE AGERATUM AND ALYSSUM

USE AGERATUM AND ALYSSUM

Borders of lavender ageratum and white alyssum have become deservedly popular features of the summer garden. This is a combination easily within the skill of the most inexperienced gardener, and requires merely the making of a shallow drill a foot and a half from the edge of the bed and sowing ageratum seed. Then six inches from the edge of the bed sow at parallel row of sweet alyssum.

Thin the plants when the seed germinates to six inches apart and the lavender and white edging is started. All that is necessary after that is to keep it weeded and watered.

There are several dwarf and compact ageratums, and they are one of the most satisfactory of bedding plants because of their freedom of bloom. They furnish a sheet of lavender until the frost, not caring much whether the rain is a torrent, or the sun baking hot. They grow quickly from seed sown outdoors in warm weather, the plants frequently catching up with transplanted stock from the hothead or indoor seedbox. There are white varieties, but the lavender, solid colors are best.

The snow white flowers and clean attractive scent of sweet alyssum has made it a continuous favorite. It makes wide mats as the season progresses and gives more and more bloom until freezing weather stops it. Sow it in the ground it is to grow in, as transplanting is harmful and unnecessary; thin to six inches apart. This will soon give you a solid mat of foliage almost hidden by the bloom.

A few seeds planted in a window box will give a fine edging to droop over the sides of the box. Both ageratum and alyssum will flourish in almost any soil, but they require a full amount of sunshine to do their best.

The miniature Mexican marigolds, with ferny foliage studded with tiny yellow flowers is often planted with the ageratum and makes a showy edging. It should be sown in a row in the same manner as the alyssum and thinned to six inches apart. It can be more easily transplanted than either the alyssum or ageratum.

Choir Boys Skip Sermons

London (AP)—Choir boys of St. John the Baptist Church, Kensington, have been supplied with books for reading during the sermons. "One Sunday night I collected hundreds of comics from the boys," explained the Rev. Lester Finchard, vicar. "Now I provide a library for them."

ECONOMY-BENT EDWARD SAVES SERVANTS' JOBS

Windsor, England (AP)—Gardeners and grocers working at Windsor Castle have been surprised to hear the quiet voice of King Edward asking, "And what, exactly, do you do here?"

It's all part of the new king's effort to find out where his money goes. By voluntary giving up his civil list of $500,000 King Edward's entire revenue is derived from the Duchy of Cornwall, and his income is smaller than that of King George.

For this reason officers of the household have been instructed that expenses must be kept down.

HAIRLESS SOUP FOR HUNGARIANS

Budapest (AP)—No longer will Hungarian restaurant patrons find a hair in their soup, unless it is their own.

The government has decreed that every waiter and cook must shave every hair on his head.

A storm of protests followed this measure of the health ministry, but as compensation it was ruled, waiters may substitute white coats and aprons for the previously required tuxedos or "tails."

Palestine Weddings Called Fakes

Warsaw (AP)—Newspapers here report that Jewish girls are being deported to Palestine by matrimonial swindlers who come to Poland under Palestine passports, marry a girl, take her to Palestine, promptly divorce her and return to this country for another bride.

New Gold Bracelets

Paris (AP)—The latest gold gadgets to be pressed into jewelry service are shaped like ragged, edged quill feathers about two inches wide. In a set of two, one makes a long straight pin, the other a wide, half open bracelet curved to fit over the arm.

Water should be changed in fresh flower arrangements at least once a day. If you haven't the time to rearrange them after draining off water in the usual way, use a siphon hose, so as not to disturb the flowers.

A good principle to follow in selecting a corsage or shoulder bouquet is that the larger flowers look best on the tall woman, small ones on a short woman. This principle can oftentimes go unheeded if you will reduce the number of large flowers to make a small arrangement.

PLANT GLADIUS—THE PERFECT SUMMER FLOWERING BULB.

By the Master Gardener

Gladioli are becoming increasingly popular because of ease of culture and beauty and abundance of bloom. A succession of bloom may be had, too, if successive plantings are made at two-week intervals from early May to the last of June. Do not make the first planting until all danger of frost is past.

Buy good bulbs. Bulbs of the same size as a rule bloom at the same time, and thus give a mass effect when in bloom. Large bulbs bloom earliest, small bulbs last. The large bulbs give an earlier flower and a larger spike, but not a larger flower. For the average gardener, it is usually best to purchase the medium size.

Choose an open sunny place, not too near buildings nor close to foundations. Sun enriches the color of gladioli. The situation must be well drained. Also it must be somewhat sheltered, as heavy winds or rain are likely to break down the spikes.

In preparing the soil, provide an ample food supply for gladioli as heavy feeders. Apply a complete plant food in the trench in which the bulbs are to be set, at the rate of 2 lbs. per 100 feet of row, mixing the plant food thoroughly with the soil in the trench.

As a precaution against thrips, it is wise, just before planting time, to soak the bulbs in a solution of corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) 1 oz. to 5 gals. of water, using wooden or earthenware containers. Bichloride of mercury breaks down when it comes in contact with metals. The bulbs should be soaked in this solution for twelve hours. This treatment will also kill any rot or scale organisms. It will retard time of bloom slightly, however.

Plant the bulbs from 4 to 7 inches deep, the deeper plantings being made on sandy soil. Deeper plantings bloom later than shallower plantings, but are not so susceptible to damage during dry weather, and the plants will stand more upright and are not so easily blown over.

When the plants reach a height of 6 inches, feed again, same amount as above (2 lbs. per 100 feet of row) of a complete balanced plant food, applying on both sides of the row prior to a necessary cultivation. Just as the flower spikes begin to show, give another similar feeding.

Cultivate well throughout the season. The more the soil is kept stirred, the better it conserves the moisture. If you are in position to water the gladioli at blooming time, do so. If not, they will do fairly well by keeping the soil well cultivated and thus conserving moisture.

When cutting the flower spikes from the gladioli, do not remove more foliage than absolutely necessary, since foliage is necessary to manufacture foods which go to build next year's bulbs. Leave at least four leaves. For best cut flowers, cut the spike when the first bud is open.

Remember: Good bulbs, plenty of sun, food, water and cultivation will raise good "gladioli."

Philippines To Survey Coast

Manila (AP)—The Philippines commonwealth aims to build up its own coast and geodetic survey. It plans to recommission the SS. Pathfinder, former U. S. government boat, and train Filipinos in work now headed by Americans.

Routine Takes Half the Time

Ithaca, N. Y., May 23—"Such routine tasks in the home as the preparation of meals, cleaning house, washing and ironing take about half of the homemaker's waking hours and three-fourths of all the time she works," says Jean Warren of the New York state college of home economics.

"To save time spent on these tasks, consider not only the time and speed needed to perform them, but also the importance of the jobs themselves. Figures show that the number of hours that a woman works naturally increases as the size of the family increases. Young children especially require more time than do adults.

"Homemakers say they would like to have more time for sewing and for the care of children. Some also say they would like to take time from routine housework to spend on handicrafts, to make the house more attractive and convenient, on rest, on outdoor work in the garden or around the farm, and on other activities with their family and friends.

"To help free the homemaker's time, other members of the household may help with household tasks. A wife mother recognizes what and how much members of the family can do. She not only encourages them to help, but also plans their work so that they will not become tired of what they do.

"Combining two tasks is another way to save time. For example, cook food for two meals when possible, or wash the breakfast dishes with an eye on the power-dish-washing machine which may be running at the same time.

BIG FAMILY OF PINKS CAN FURNISH WHOLE GARDEN

Pinks Come in a Great Number of Species, Hybrids and Varieties. You Cannot Have Too Many of Them.

It would be easily possible to grow a garden composed entirely of pinks, and produce a grand show of color from early spring until hard freezing checked the garden. There are pinks for rock gardens, plants for edging, pinks for bedding pinks for pots, pinks for cutting and pinks good only for garden color. It is a general purpose plant and there are a great number of species, hybrids and varieties.

The colors run through all shades of red, pink, rose to a blue, with some almost black. There are open or two pale yellow pinks, but blue is absent in the genus Dianthus. For immediate display the same pink in the garden Japanese and Chinese pinks, perennial if procured from the perennial border, have the hardy pink, the grass pink, clove pink, hardy carnations and the all-blue pinks for the rock garden.

The marriage of the pink and the grass pink is known as Dianthus plumarius, also often known as June pinks, close scented, fringed with

California Ranch Woman Wins Prize For Best Recipe

New York, May 23 (AP)—A quiet little California ranch-wife who knows how to cook "pumpkin good," held the title, "1936 National Cooking Champion of America."

It's a dish made of the pumpkin left over from pumpkin pie, and served after old-fashioned pot roast and string beans on the meal that won first place and a $500 prize for Mrs. Alberta Moore, 29, of Santa Rosa, Calif., at the Women's National Exposition of Arts and Industries.

Here is Mrs. Moore's recipe for "pumpkin goody":

1 cup hot pumpkin, 3 tbsp. shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup molasses, 1 cup 1/2 cup sifted flour, 1/2 tsp. soda, 1/2 tsp. cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger, 1/2 tsp. salt.

Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs, and beat well. Add molasses, then dry ingredients sifted together, and last fold in the hot pumpkin mixture. Bake in a shallow 9x12 pan in a moderate oven (350°) 40 min. Cut into pieces, serving each person two, with lemon sauce between them, and a glass of cold milk on the side.

blue-green foliage and a wealth of bloom in their season.

The annual pinks made fine masses of color with fountains and zinnias, the prevailing colors being reds and pinks. They come in double and single forms. Sow seed now and transplant eight inches apart. In a few weeks they will be in gorgeous bloom, developing new stems all summer if seed is kept out.

The plant which is the most of the annual pinks. They can be bought in single colors or mixed. The best, we have the annual Japanese and Chinese pinks, perennial if procured from the perennial border, have the hardy pink, the grass pink, clove pink, hardy carnations and the all-blue pinks for the rock garden.

For a Very Young Modern

Remarking instincts are fostered in a child from infancy, and today to the one who has an attractive nursery. This nursery, in a home which was remodeled under the Reconstruction Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration, was designed to cater to the child's health and pleasure. Walls which would provide a pleasant background but would not intrude upon the child's consciousness were chosen. A window provided plenty of sunlight and air and was low enough to allow a small child to look out without standing on tip-toes and resting his nose on the sill. Attractive furniture provided storage space for clothes and toys and added to the room's decorative scheme as well.

The Grunenwalds Meet Joe Brown And Lose to the Hedricks 8 to 3

The scheduled pitchers' duel between Jack Dodge, ace of the Grunenwald outfit, and Joe Brown, manager of the Hedricks, did not materialize Thursday night in the City League game between the Grunenwalds and the Hedricks.

Joe was on hand, very much so as results proved, but the Grunenwald veteran found the chilly breeze too much for his variety of soupbone and Big Joe Mahar of Kingston and Notre Dame, took up the white man's burden—and found it pretty heavy.

Result—Hedricks, 8; Grunenwalds, 3.

The new pitching star fully came up to expectations. When the game was over it was found that he had ten strikeouts to his credit, had held the league leaders down to six singles and was charged with two free passes. He was helped by the fact that his team played errorless ball behind him, while the losers had four miscues charged against them.

Otherwise the star of the game was Van Eiten. Hedrick first baseman, who got three hits in three times at bat, including a home run, a double and a single—batting in half of the runs made by his team. The Grunenwalds got one in the first on Lamb's single and two passed balls. They added two more in the final inning when Purvis walked, Gadd singled and Jack Dodge, batting for Mahar, came through with a safety.

Hedricks got their first two runs in the opening stanza when Cullum and Murphy scored on Van Eiten's single. Again in the third Van Eiten's homer scored two more, Murphy having singled. They added another in the fifth and wound up with three more in the seventh on singles by Murphy and Tomaszewski, an error by Hanley and a free walk to Van Eiten.

As a result of the game Thursday night, the Hedricks enter their first win in the scoring column, the Grunenwalds drop down to second place and the Kaslich A. C., with four games won and one lost, go up into first place.

An unfortunate incident of the game was one that will cost the Grunenwalds the services of two of their best players, for a week at least.

was the collision between Don Kelly, catcher, and Herb Van Deusen, third sacker. The two went after a pop fly and came together. As a result both were taken to the Kingston Hospital, where it was found necessary to take four stitches in a nasty cut on Van Deusen's eyelid and two stitches in a cut over Kelly's eye.

Shovel In The Coal And Patrol The Tracks—Roosevelt 'If' Special Comes 'Round The Bend

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington (AP)—Some large leather bags in the luggage room at the White House will receive a hurried packing Sunday, June 7, if Congress adjourns for the season, or if it declares a three-day recess during the Republican convention.

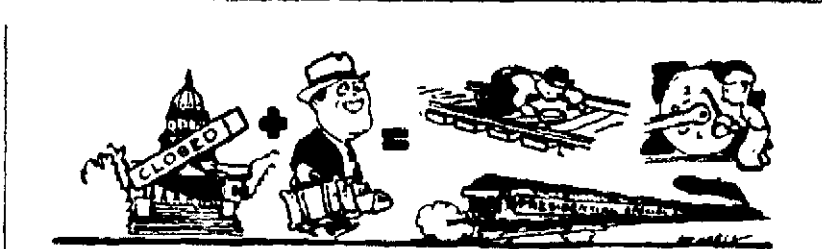

President Roosevelt would like to take a trip in June, with stops in Arkansas, Texas and Indiana. But he has announced he can't leave Washington unless the congressional mill ceases its grinding.

In the meantime, White House secret service men are outlining "if" schedules for the trip, and railroad executives are organizing "if" crews to run the Presidential special and patrol the trackage over which he will travel.

Activities Will Start

If, on Saturday night, June 6, Vice-President Garner takes an adjournment motion in the Senate, and Speaker Byrns maneuvers one in the House, there will begin a two-day bustle over the presidential route.

Servants at the White House will pack. The President will squeeze in some last hours of work. Thousands of miles of railroad tracks will be checked, and railroad crews will receive special orders for the routing of the Roosevelt train. On June 8 the President will set out.

His first stop will be in Arkansas; at Little Rock and Hot Springs. It is thought. Whether he will speak more than informally at either stop is not known. But it is not expected. Then he will proceed to Fort Worth, Tex., to spend a night with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, who live there. The next day he will make the short-trip to Dallas to deliver a speech on the grounds of the Texas Centennial.

Then To Indiana

From Dallas his train will swing

north to Vincennes, Ind., where he will speak at the dedication of the George Rogers Clark memorial.

The scheduled Indiana address has stirred political gossip. It will come just about the time the Republican convention at Cleveland reaches a climax. But Mr. Roosevelt has said none of the speeches on his trip will be political. He is expected to talk on subjects more intimately concerned with the ceremony at which he appears.

In any case, the President has said he must be back in Washington on June 15. Then will come a lull until June 23 when the Democrats convene at Philadelphia. It is expected to be a short convention which will end with the nomination of President Roosevelt for a second term.

He has said he will do as he did in 1932: go immediately to the convention for the nomination ceremony. Mrs. Roosevelt will accompany him to Philadelphia, and then "go off the record for the summer."

To Virginia In July

On July Fourth the President will journey south into Virginia, to aid in dedication of the Shenandoah national park. The President intends to stay in the neighborhood over night, no doubt to feast his eyes on the rolling Blue Ridge ranges and to drive along some of the new roads which are opening the untouched forests to motorists.

The President's later summer plans are uncertain. It is expected he will spend some time at his cool and peaceful Hyde Park home in New York. His week-ends in the Capitol no doubt will find him on the Potomac river fishing and keeping cool.

It is assumed that in September and October he will make a campaign swing around the country, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt. But the whole June schedule, the President emphasizes, is contingent on what Congress does. He will only order up his bags from the luggage room "if" Congress finishes, or temporarily closes, its business.

In County Granges

Memorial Service

Highland, May 29—Highland Grange will hold a memorial service at their meeting on Tuesday evening.

The program being arranged by Mrs. Charles Bell will have a memorial degree in which 12 girls will take part; a tableau, "The Old Rugged Cross," in which Mrs. Gladys Mears will be the soloist; a talk by Ludwig Krissler of Poughkeepsie on the subject, "Tillers of Success"; a recitation, "Their Leaders," by Mrs. Alvin Stiller.

Members of Highland Grange were guests of Patron Grange at Accord on Tuesday night. Going by bus were Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, Herbert Galloway, Laverne Davis, Mrs. Mary Carroll, Mrs. William Dodge, Mrs. Alvin Stiller, Mrs. Harry Elliott, Mrs. Louis Gruner, Mrs. Gladys Mears, Eli Merritt, Mrs. Harvey Craig, Earl Kisor, Mrs. Albert Shaw, Charlotte Shaw, Miss Anna Dyatt, Mrs. Chaucy Elliott, Mrs. Charles Bell and driving with Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Freer were Phyllis Freer and Charles Bell. The program included a piano solo by Mrs. Schoonmaker, a talk on Arabia, two games in which guessing the articles placed on a table in a given number of seconds was won by Mrs. Alvin Stiller and the walk around a circle and grabbing silver ware, and a radio skit entertained all present. Talks were given by Mrs. Charles Bell, Earl Kisor and Mrs. Louis Gruner. The hosts served jello, cake and coffee.

On Court Calendar

When county court convenes Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock Judge Traver will swear the jurors and then an adjournment will be taken until June 8, in order that the county court chambers may be used during the mayors' conference here on June 3, 4 and 5. When county court re-opens on June 8 criminal work will be taken up and the civil matters will follow. It is expected that criminal matters will probably take up the week of June 8 but should there be a break in criminal work Judge Traver will take up civil cases.

Mrs. Martin Wins Rose and Gorman's Mattress Contest

After examining the hundreds of entries submitted as names for Rose and Gorman's "No-name" Mattress contest it was finally decided this morning to select the name "Moretta." This name was suggested by Mrs. Grace C. Martin, 23 Orchard street, city.

Second prize was shared by Judy B. Miner, 39 Roosevelt avenue, and Henrietta Miller, 13 Franklin street, for the name "Nestdown" and "Nestledown" respectively — there being only the differentiation of one letter, "E," between the two entries.

Third prize went to Elizabeth Wurts, New Palis, for the name "Merry Morn," which was accompanied by the following explanatory verse:

"Though you seek your rest at evening
Spent in body—mind forlorn.
Yet how bright shall be life's outlook
Waking on a Merry Morn."

Judges who reached the decision were Messrs. E. Frank Flanagan and Stanworth Hancock.

Mattress contest ran for three weeks. An introductory prize contest to bring before the people of Kingston and Ulster county the news of this new, sensational mattress combining the features of a high-class mattress at price made for the budget of everybody.

This mattress with its superior construction and unheard of features at so low a price took months to find. With the cooperation of one of America's finest mattress manufacturers the specifications desired by the Big Store for its wonder mattress were incorporated in this new creation first named.

Prizes for first, second and third prize were distributed before a goodly crowd collected in R. and G. furniture department this afternoon. All contestants were informed that they would receive, by mail, a very valuable reward offered by the Big Store for their cooperation in finding a name for Rose and Gorman's wonder mattress.

Cast Selected For "Candle-Light"

The Guild actors will make every effort to insure that the same criticism may be made of it in Kingston, and are continuing their policy of including some new faces among the more familiar ones in the cast. The play will be directed, and scenery designed by Albert Edward Milliken.

Charles E. Ford, Jr., Found Not Guilty

After a jury trial which commenced yesterday morning at 10 o'clock and, except for adjournments for dinner and supper, continued until 1:45 o'clock this morning, Charles E. Ford, of Allaben was found not guilty of possessing venison, as charged by Brian Bergan, a game protector.

The trial was held at Pine Hill before Judge George C. Smith and a jury of eleven witnesses were sworn by The People, among whom were Game Protector Brian Bergan, Special Game Protector A. H. Kilmer, Trooper Dunn, Forest Ranger Fred Andrews and others. Six witnesses were sworn by the defendant, Charles E. Ford, Jr., and three other persons on March 15, 1936, and charged them with illegal possession of the carcass of a deer. There was much excitement in Shandaken over the arrests and Game Protector Bergan filed charges against all four persons, one of whom was a young lady. All four of the accused persons demanded jury trials and all four were originally taken before Justice Theron Townsend at Allaben. The Ford case was removed from Judge Townsend's court to the court of George C. Smith at Pine Hill for trial, the other cases remaining for trial before Judge Townsend. Jury trials were demanded in all four cases and, in the cases before Judge Townsend a jury was chosen to try each of the defendants, the jurors being taken from the entire town. In the Ford case, although the defendant demanded a jury trial he was restricted to jurors living within a three mile radius of the place of trial at Pine Hill. The cases against the three persons whose trials were pending before Judge Townsend were dismissed without trials some time ago and Ford was the only one of the persons arrested who was brought to trial. The case attracted much attention in the town of Shandaken yesterday and a large number of people attended the trial and remained down to the time the jury rendered its verdict, which was almost 2 o'clock this morning. After the case was submitted to the jury, a verdict of not guilty was reached in about 15 minutes. The trial was attended by a large number of employees of the Conservation Commission and the case was prosecuted by Gleason Spensburgh of Fleischmanns. The defendant was represented at the trial by Chris J. Flanagan, who was assisted by Thomas J. Plunkett.

"To my sister-in-law, I bequeath four old stockings which are under my bed to the right." So runs an item in the will of the famous old miser, Tolan. "To my nephew, Taries, two more old stockings; to Lieut. John Stone, a blue stocking and my red sock; to my cousin, an old sock, and a red fannel pocket; to Hamrick, my red without a handle." According to this anybody can write a will, for the poorest of us have old stockings. In the story of Tolan, however, Hamrick kicked over the jug and found it to be filled with gold pieces. The old stockings were crammed in a similar way. There is the famous clause in Shakespeare's will reading: "I give unto my wife my second best bed, with the furniture, and nothing else."

SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—George E. Stone, once of vaudeville, and Sammy White, ditto, sat down together the other day and named the current movie celebrities who like themselves were backgrounded in the three-day

They reeled off the names of Fred Astaire, Mae West, Joe E. Brown, the late Will Rogers, Charlie Ruggles, Frank Fay, Eddie Cantor, Lila Lee, Hugh Herbert, Harry Richman—and then decided they might as well stop because, after all, the list could go on practically indefinitely.

"And none of them," remarked Sammy, the dancing comedian of the new "Sho-Boat," his first film, "has changed a bit. I think," he added, "that's why they're all so good in pictures. Actors learn things in vaudeville, and vaudeville tests their personalities. If the people like them in the three-day, those personalities are good for pictures, too. Why should they try to be different?"

A Show Boat Veteran

Sammy, a comic with operatic ambitions, has been on the stage virtually all his 39 years. He was in the original Ziegfeld production of "Show Boat," which is why he got a call for the movie.

Like every vaudevillean, Sammy has reminiscences of the "days when," and here are a few about current personalities. He remembers when:

Harry Richman played the piano for Mae West—and didn't sing himself.

George E. Stone did a dancing act. (In pictures Stone never has danced.)

Nancy Carroll was a chorus girl in the Winter Garden show.

Phil Baker was Ben Bernie's stooge.

Hugh Herbert, of Scotch descent, had difficulty convincing agents he could play a Jewish comic.

Marie Dressler in Revue

The late Marie Dressler had a spot in a revue, despite the managers feeling that she was passe and her style of comedy would fail.

Lila Lee, Eddie Cantor and George Jessel were touring in Gus Edwards' "School Days." (When they came to Providence, R. I., Sammy's home town, Gus saw Sammy dance, and said he would send for him for his next show—but forgot, or something.)

Billy Rose, now the big impresario, sent up $2,000 for Sammy and associates to complete production of "The Melody Man." (Fredric March was leading man and drew $55 a week.)

Larry Hart and Dick Rodgers, of musical fame, were Columbia university students inquiring around about how to sell a song.

Sigmund Romberg, the composer, played the piano for Winter Garden rehearsals—for $50 a week.

Today

Broadway: "Love On a Bet." In the tradition of the picture "It Happened One Night," this RKO-Radio film tries desperately to catch the magic of the Gable-Colbert hitch hike romance but fails. The picture is good entertainment however, cleverly handled and worked out into a smooth running, crazy story of a young man who makes a bet he can start out in New York with nothing but his underwear and end up in California with a suit of clothes, a hundred dollars and engaged to a beautiful girl. This assignment, naturally causes considerable activity smattered with humor and the play makes the most of each situation. Those in the cast are Gene Raymond, Wendy Barrie, Helen Broderick, William Collier, Sr., Walter Johnson, Eddie Gribbon and Morgan Wallace.

Kingston: "O'Malley of the Mounted" and "F-Man." George O'Brien hits the great open spaces of the Canadian northwest in the hit feature at the Kingston, and before the climax and climax is reached at the picture's termination, Mr. O'Brien goes through the roughest and toughest series of adventures any audience could ask for and comes out unscathed, despite the odds against him. Here's a real thriller done in the successful O'Brien manner and young and old should get considerable kick from this robust yarn of the men who keep the law alive in the north country. "F-Man" is the story of a small village soda dispenser who has yearnings to be a G-Man. Practical jokes in the department make him an F-Man instead when he fails to pass the tests but he comes through in a big way before the picture ends. Jack Haley, Grace Bradley, William Frawley, Onslow Stephens and Adrienne Marden are featured.

Orpheum: "It Had to Happen" and "Trigger Tom." George Raft of the patent leather plus Rosalind Russell, Arline Judge, Leo Carrillo and Alan Dinehart all combine resources in the first play at the Orpheum, a cleverly told story of an Italian immigrant boy who rises from a street shoveler to a political power in New York. A neat love story runs through the entire film and Mr. Raft is more acceptable than usual in a sympathetic role. Good, lively entertainment done by a fine cast of players. "Trigger Tom" is the other attraction with Tom Tyler going through one hair raising episode after another.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "Under Two Flags." Ouida's sentimental little tale of the French Foreign Legion grows to monstrous proportions in the screen play at the Broadway, thanks to the directorial genius of the capable Frank Lloyd and a superlative cast of players which include Ronald Colman, Claudette Colbert, Victor McLaglen, Rosalind Russell, Nigel Bruce, Gregory Ratoff, Onslow Stephens and Herbert Mundin. A trite little drama of the African exploits of the famed Legionnaires, it tells of a girl who is the Legion's mascot and her subsequent sacrifice to love of country. The desert shots constitute the most compelling part of the show and the battle scenes are also done on the grand scale. Because of the scope of the picture, the players are relegated to minor roles and they move their tiny way through the vivid desert panorama. The picture is pure romance and should prove entertaining to almost any type of audience.

Kingston: "Times Square Playboy" and "Murder on the Bridle Path." The metropolitan scene gets a good play in "Times Square Playboy" as it tells the story of a young man who goes to the city to help out his best friend and manages to mess everything up in fine style. The humor is excellent and the entire show is an engaging affair. Warren William, June Travis, Barton MacLane, Gene Lockhart and Dick Purcell are featured. "Murder on the Bridle Path" brings James Gleason and Helen Broderick together for the first time as a couple of humorous detectives who have their hands full tracing down the reasons for a couple of murders, one of which takes place on a bridge path. Much of the action centers around a spooky old mansion and the show is a blend of laughs and terror. The supporting cast includes Louise Latimer, John Arledge, Sheila Terry, Leslie Fenton and John Carroll.

Several years ago, Margaret Sparks found and answered an ad which read "Prime Donna Wanted." She and the job—in a cooperative move—were placed in Manhattan's artistic Greenwich Village. When the "Prime Donna" program wanted a "Prime Donna" for the summer series, on NBC, Margaret Sparks was chosen for the second consecutive year.

Nazi Navy Presents Big Celebration

Kiel, Germany, May 29 (AP).—The new Nazi navy steamed through Kiel Bay today in Germany's greatest naval display since the World War, celebrating the revival of the Reich fleet.

Some 50 battleships, cruisers, destroyers, speedboats and submarines—with Adolf Hitler himself aboard the vest-pocket battleship Deutschland—faced an "enemy attack" from the north of Kiel harbor, off Germany's most important naval base. The fleet moved out early in the morning, and at 7 a. m. (1 a. m. E. S. T.) the new units of Der Fuehrer's growing fleet engaged in a weighty sham battle.

After this encounter, in which the Germans were the fore-ordained winners, Hitler will review the fleet off Lubeck in a grand parade through Kiel Bay and lead it back to port.

New submarines and speedboats, first units of the fleet being built under the Anglo-German treaty which wiped away the Versailles treaty limitations of the Reich navy to 100,000 tons, were shown publicly for the first time.

In addition to its World War treaty navy, Germany has constructed 19 submarines and a similar number of speedboats in the last six months as a nucleus for the proposed fleet to reach 420,535 tons, or 35 per cent of the British fleet.

The political pot boils harder as hot weather comes on.

Taj Mahal Copies To Adorn Bath In Mansion Of American Heiress

Delhi, India (AP).—American wealth drawn from the tobacco fortune of the former Doris Duke and her husband, James H. Cromwell, has saved India's ancient art of marble-carving as exemplified in the beautiful Taj Mahal.

Copies of some of the carved windows, inlaid doors and panels of the famous temple at Agra have been completed and are on their way to the United States to adorn a bedroom and bath in the Cromwells' palatial home at Palm Beach, Florida.

They were ordered by the couple while visiting India, thereby providing an impetus for the centuries-old industry which had almost died out in modern times. Only a few descendants of the craftsmen who fashioned the Taj Mahal in Shah Jehan's time, still carried on a precarious living by making small inlaid souvenirs for visitors to the temple.

Experts Marvel At Work.

The marble panels, as ordered by Mrs. Cromwell, form a dado about two and a half feet high, with each panel a floral picture.

Experts pronounce the workmanship a miracle of skill. Semi-precious stones—jade, corneol, agate, malachite, lapis lazuli and mother-of-pearl—are fitted into the petals of the flowers and the curves of the stems. The natural veining of the stone has been utilized to stimulate the markings of flowers and leaves.

The stones were cut to the minutest fraction, for no cement or adhesive material of any kind could be used to hold them in position. The result is a transparency and brilliancy unrivaled, say experts, since the dynasty which produced so many marvels of architecture in India.

Famous Screen Copied.

The panels will be installed in a marble bedroom and marble bathroom in the Cromwell home, with eight of the huge carved masterpieces going into the bedroom.

Traditional geometrical patterns of the Taj Mahal doors have been preserved, but with a novel effect produced by super-imposing carved designs of lilies, iris and other flowers on the background.

Each door occupied the time of six men for three months.

In addition, there is a screen with the Scales of Justice, copied in minutest detail from the famous screen in Delhi Fort.

Marble panels copied from the wonderful traceries in stone which have made the Taj Mahal one of the world's masterpieces, are being shipped from India to the Florida home of the James H. Cromwells. She is the former Doris Duke, heiress of tobacco millions. The costly panels will be installed in a bedroom and adjoining bath.

Stirred by the Cromwells' patronage to a dying art, several maharajahs are considering following their example by engaging the newly-discovered craftsmen for special inlay and carving work in their palaces.

NAVIGATION NOTES

Activities on the Hudson river this year already look good. Night lines are reporting good sale of tickets and with Albany celebrating its 250th birthday in June the river lines are making a bid for business which will come with this celebration.

The first New York to Albany excursion for the Memorial Day vacation period went up the river early this morning past Kingston when the Rensselaer of the night line took the annual Totem Lodge at Burden Lake crowd up for the weekend. As soon as the vacationists were ashore the Rensselaer turned around and steamed back down the river for New York where she will make a quick turnaround and steam back to Albany on scheduled run. A second night boat also went up the river with a capacity crowd this morning.

Saturday morning two night boats will make the run from New York to Albany. One will have aboard 200 Masons and their wives and children on an excursion to visit the Masonic Home for indigent members.

Among the flotilla of boats which will greet the Queen Mary Monday on her arrival from England will be the Peter Stuyvesant of the Hudson River Day Line. The Stuyvesant will steam down the bay and escort the big liner to her pier.

The Alexander Hamilton of the Day Line will leave Albany Saturday with a Memorial Day excursion party which will land at Kingston Point. The Alexander Hamilton will go up the river today to Albany on schedule run in order to be ready for the Kingston Point excursion Saturday.

If you have an important message to send quickly, it goes by wire.

That is just what the brain does in directing the work of the body. It sends out its messages over the greatest communicating system in the world, the nervous system.

If something goes wrong with this system, the brain cannot get its full amount of force over the nerve wires and disease is the result.

PERFORMANCE WITH ECONOMY

Terms as low as $25 a month, after down payment, under new CCC 1/2 per cent a month plan. Prices $240 and up. F. O. B. Detroit, including Safety Glass throughout in every body type. Standard accessory group extra.

FAST getaway's just one of the things that make a Ford V-8 "feel" so different. Wherever you drive you sense the difference. There's more power. Greater smoothness. Quicker responsiveness. A V-8 engine means modern performance that only a V-8 can give you! Several years ago you would have had to pay up into the thousands for these advantages. The next V-8 car today costs $1643. Yet here is one of the lowest-priced of all cars. And one of the most economical. Ford V-8 owners are reporting gas mileage on a par with less powerful cars, and no extra oil required between changes.

But Ford advantages don't stop even there. There's a fine-car riding quality on 123" springbase—almost a foot longer than wheelbase. There's remarkable stability on turns and rough roads. Steering, steering, braking are almost effortless. Brakes are the surest type in the world. Before you decide on any new car, get into a 1936 Ford V-8 and try for yourself the pleasures that only Ford owners enjoy.
